At Streamland, we are committed to the diversity of our audiences, leaders, producers and creators of music, arts and culture shown on Streamland being reflective of the diversity of contemporary England:

Streamland obligations:

- Working with venues, we actively ensure that a diverse range of artists has the opportunity to participate in and benefit from this platform, showcasing a high quality artistic and cultural programme
- We market Streamland to venues and artists with a clear message of inclusion, highlighted by successful case studies on the platform
- We research any barriers via regular surveys, mail and social media and identify solutions with the communities to overcome these.
- We have a process of review with our ACE Relationship Manager to ensure progress
- We collect, analyse and report on audience and artist data relating to equality, diversity and inclusion and act on the results

For the first year the MVT Streaming Steering Group will take responsibility for these actions with Cathy Smith documenting and collating the evidence. Thereafter we will set up a monitoring board from participants, ensuring a diverse leadership.

Venue obligations:

- Venues will promote work on Streamland from diverse artists/practitioners and organisations on an on-going and sustainable basis as part of a high quality diverse and artistic cultural programme
- Venues will actively remove barriers facing members of protected characteristic groups in participating and engaging

- Venues will support emerging talent from all communities to develop their full potential
- Venues will market the Streamland platform to all of their communities, artists and audiences with messages of inclusion
